German Troops in Command of Gdynia

German machine gunners are shown in one of the trenches that had been occupied by Polish defenders of Gdynia, seaport on the Baltic which Poland built as its own outlet for world commerce. The port held out in the face of terrific bombardments by land, sea and air. Its surrender gave Germany control of the entire corridor. CIVIL SERVICE TEST IS SOUGHT

Attorney General Takes Case To State Supreme Court

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Sept. 18.—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert moved today for a speedy test in the state supreme court of Democratic state headquarters' efforts to block effectiveness of the civil service reorganization law.

Herbert asked attorneys for Democratic Chairman Arthur Limbach to transfer immediately from Franklin county common pleas court to the state's highest tribunal a suit seeking to force a popular referendum on the merit system legislation, backed by Gov. John W. Bricker's administration.

Limbach obtained from Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds an order temporarily restraining Secretary of State Earl H. Griffith from taking any action that would make effective the law, held in abeyance since Sept. 6 by the Democrats' filing a referendum petition.

Shortly before he was served with Reynolds' order, Griffith mailed notification to Limbach and H. T. Chapman, secretary of the provisional state employees association, that the petitions were rejected as bearing insufficient signatures.

The practical purpose of Limbach's suit was to force Griffith to submit the petition to county election boards for checks of the signatures, thereby obtaining additional time to make up any deficiency.

Democratic Parley Held With Sawyer

COLUMBUS, Sept. 18.—Democratic leaders studied a party program today in the light of "divergent opinions" that were aired at an all-day session with national committeeman Charles Sawyer yesterday.

Sawyer, who lost a race for the governorship last year, entertained some 60 of the 70 members of the state executive committee at his Madison county farm and said later:

"Naturally, there were divergent opinions about the party program, but there was unanimous agreement on the need for supporting President Roosevelt and a definite desire as far as Ohio politics is concerned for a program that can cement and secure the general support of the party and of independent Republicans."

Razed By Fire

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—An early morning fire, which destroyed a business block in suburban North Olmsted today caused damage estimated by Fire Chief William Bidolph at $60,000, of which $25,000 was to the building which housed a dentist's office and seven stores.

District traffic mishaps brought injuries to 11 persons over the weekend, state highway patrolmen reported.

FALL FESTIVAL CROWDS THROG SALEM STREETS

Downtown Section Jammed Saturday Night As Program Ends

STREET PARADE IS SUCCESSFUL

Many Attractive Floats Compete For Cash Awards

Reminiscent of the old time festivals, homecomings and other similar events, Salem's 1939 Fall Festival, sponsored by the American Legion and merchants of the Business Bureau, poured one of the largest crowds in a decade or more into downtown streets Saturday night.

With the weatherman in an agreeable mood, save for the fact that the most folks thought he turned on the heat just a little too emphatically, people from not only Salem but all the surrounding communities began to throng the downtown streets early Saturday.

Streets Are Lined

Streets were lined almost solidly for the parade in the early afternoon. By evening it was difficult to walk along the main streets; stores were jammed. And by 10 it seemed as though practically everyone had locked up the house and come out on the streets, particularly in the E. State and Broadway area.

The afternoon parade was generally regarded as one of the most successful in recent years. The floats were up-to-the-minute in every respect, indicating much time and effort had been spent in their preparation.

The parade, led by the Salem High school band, traversed the downtown section. The floats brought applause from the spectators all along the route. Later they were judged for cash prizes offered by the Business Bureau merchants.

Prizes were $50 for first place, $25 for second and $10 for third.

The Winners

The flower-bedecked float of Endres-Gross, with a placard, U. S. Desires Peace, won first place in the commercial division. Italy's was second and Bloomberg's third.

First place winner in the organizations division was the potters local No. 42 of the Salem China Co., which also carried a peace appeal with the wording, Let's Stay Neutral. The Girl Scouts were second and the Quota club third in this group.

Of the rural entries, the Misspah class of the Winona Methodist church won first prize. Perry grange was second and the Christian Endeavor of St. Jacob's Reformed church, third.

Prizes given by the American Legion to merchants for outstanding and attractive window displays were won by Bunn's, first place; Schwartz, second; Glogan-Myers, third.

Four Bands In Parade

In addition to the Salem High school band, the Fairmont Children's home band, the Columbiana High school band, directed by Clair King of Salem, and the Salvation Army unit, were in the parade.

Many persons visited the Legion post's carnival grounds on South Broadway Friday night and Saturday, held as a part of the festival activities.

The pitching meter, brought here by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, attracted considerable interest on Saturday.

The meter, on a specially-designed trailer, showed baseball fans how fast they could throw a ball.

Charles Brightwell and Orrie Snyder of Salem each registered a speed of 128 feet per second and split first and second place prizes, totaling $8, offered by the Jaycees.

A third place tie was between Wallace Davis of Salem and B. Loudon of Hanoverton, who threw the ball 125 feet a second.

Educator Dies

COLUMBUS, Sept. 18.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Dr. George Frederick Arps, 65, dean of the Ohio state university graduate school, who died Saturday of myeloma, a bone disease. A member of the Ohio State faculty since 1912, Dr. Arps served as dean of the college of education from 1920 to 1927.

Drink Is Fatal

CINCINNATI, Sept. 18.—Elmer Hughes, 25-year-old bartender, was dead today from the effects of a drink mixed for himself and three fellow workhouse inmates from the contents of a medicine cabinet.

Shadow of Coming Events?

Speculation in unofficial Berlin indicates Germany does not want Warsaw or all of Poland in a peace plan. Russian and Lithuanian intimations of claims to parts of Poland eventually may lead to this partition—subject to Allied objections. Germany may extend borders as shown in white space to left. The narrow central strip would remain a buffer Poland. Lithuania may demand territory (cross hatch) around Vilna, and Russia the Polish Ukraine, as shown in white space on right.

POLISH LEADERS FLEE INVADERS

Report President May Take Government To London

(By Associated Press)
CERNIAUTI, Rumania, Sept. 18.—President Ignace Moscicki and Foreign Minister Jozef Beck, who fled from two invading armies in Poland, were reported today planning to take their government to London.

Before leaving Rumania, it was said, they might receive foreign diplomats in a final audience.

There were reports that Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, Polish army commander, and members of the general staff had escaped into neutral Rumania. This could not be confirmed.

Seventy additional Polish warplanes landed at this frontier town, bringing to 292 the number reaching here within the past few days. The planes were seized and the fliers interned, as were Polish soldiers who crossed the border. They were disarmed. Privates and non-commissioned officers were taken to a camp. Officers were sent to a concentration center near Bucharest.

Word was received that Criscea, Rumanian frontier town, had been bombed by mistake last night either by German or Russian warplanes, setting fire to a sugar refinery.

No One Injured In Intersection Crash

Considerable property damage resulted but no one was injured when automobiles driven by Mrs. C. Sekely of 826 Jennings ave., and J. E. Landwehr of 1122 Cleveland st., collided at 9:30 a. m. Saturday at the intersection of N. Ellsworth ave. and Fifth st., police reported.

According to police, Mrs. Sekely failed to observe a stop sign on Fifth st.

A car owned by William Baker, parked in front of his residence at 223 W. Pershing st., started downhill when the brake let loose and struck a light pole Sunday night, police said.

Machines operated by Frank J. Eckstein, 894 Franklin ave., and Enoch McClendon of East Rochester figured in a minor collision at the corner of S. Ellsworth ave. and Pershing st., at 1:40 p. m. Saturday.

Police said automobiles driven by Robert Lora and Alice Smith of Salem collided on E. State st., at 1:40 a. m. Sunday.

Vatican Denounces Action Of Russia

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 18.—The Vatican newspaper O'Osservatore Romano today denounced Soviet Russia's invasion of Poland as "an outrageous gesture" on an "untrue pretext."

A front-page editorial written by Count Giuseppe Della Torre, editor, declared Poland was not finished by the German invasion.

"All those who know it and believe it who are attached to the Poles by the same faith and know the danger which, with the fate of their country, threatens the Catholicism that is the thought of European and world civilization," the paper said.

Poland Tottering, Russians On Move, Eyes Turn To West

BULLETIN

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—The Nazi swastika and the Russian hammer and sickle met today in the fallen Polish city of Brest-Litovsk where Russian revolutionists and Germans signed their separate peace in the World war.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Thousands of steel-helmeted German reserves were reported flooding into the Siegfried line today to strengthen Germany's stand against the French advance on Nazi soil.

The movement of German reserves toward the western front was regarded by military experts here as a sign Nazis expect Polish resistance on the eastern front to collapse soon. Heavily outnumbered, the Poles appeared from reports reaching here to be surrounded by Germans on the west, north and south and by Russians on the east.

Russia's invasion of Poland shocked France, although the nation expected it. The press condemned it almost unanimously as treachery.

SOVIET FORCES CUT INTO POLES

Creation Of Polish Buffer State Is Seen By Observers

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Sept. 18.—The Red armies of Soviet Russia swept deeper into war-weakened Poland from the east today as diplomatic circles predicted the buffer-state created after the World war would be divided again between its two invaders.

Word from the Red army general staff of a constantly narrowing wedge between Russian and German troops revived reports an armistice in the European war will be proposed as soon as Poland's fate is determined.

Such a proposal, diplomatic sources said, might be made by Russia or Germany's axis partner, Italy.

With the first move from the east that pinned Poland in a vise yesterday, Moscow informed Poland's allies, Britain and France, the Soviet Union would follow a neutral policy toward them.

In a radio broadcast by Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and in his notes to 24 governments represented in Moscow, crossing of the frontier was described as necessary to protect once-Russian minorities in eastern Poland.

What many Frenchmen had predicted apparently was approaching reality—German and Russian forces were nearing a junction close to the Rumanian frontier where they would have a channel for Russia to send German supplies for her war in the west.

Frenchmen wondered what success this might have in counteracting the British-French naval blockade, a factor in Germany's World war defeat.

Informed sources here regard the entry of Russia into Poland a blow to neutrality of small states of southeastern Europe.

They consider Rumania particularly endangered because she holds territory once belonging to Russia. Should the conflict spread to the Balkans, these sources expect a quick reaction from Turkey.

In some French quarters also it is believed the Russian action may bring the official policy of Italy—still on the sidelines although a military ally of Germany—into sharper focus. Some Frenchmen even profess to see helpful signs in Poland since they say, there is bound to be mutual distrust between Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin with both their armies on the same foreign soil.

The French army now firmly holds the left bank of the Saar river from the German border city of Saarguemines, where the river enters Germany, to Metz, where it nears Luxembourg.

Ohioans Benefit By Easier Terms Of Home Loan Unit

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Easier terms will benefit 90,000 Ohioans who owe money to the Home Owners Loan Corp.

The liberalized program, authorized by congress, cuts the interest rate from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent and extends the amortization period from 15 to 25 years, effective Oct. 16.

"This program," said an HOLC official, "is but an expansion of extensions the corporation has been granting for more than two years to borrowers who have proved their good faith and who officials were convinced would vindicate their judgment in granting them exceptionally liberal terms."

From the time of its establishment in June 1933, until the close of its lending period, June 12, 1936, HOLC granted more than 98,000 loans amounting to $305,877,993 in Ohio.

The corporation reported that 7,715 borrowers had paid their obligations in full amounting to $19,000,000 as of June 30, 1939, and therefore were not affected by the new terms.

Of the remaining 90,000 benefited by the changes, HOLC said 66,246 were on their way to debt-free home ownership.

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 18.—Burglars escaped with 100 pennies, three vending machines and four cartons of cigars after breaking into Clint Pierson's gasoline station Sunday, police said.

BACK TO CHURCH

This is the time of year when all churches experience a revival of interest. Pews which were empty most of the summer while visiting preachers talked to dwindling audiences are filling again and spiritual life of the nation gets into stride for the winter.

There will be more than the usual amount of interest this year. War always turns the mind of the world to religion. There is a solemnity in the hearts of people which finds expression in worship.

Religion is a good thing for any nation. Americans are fortunate that they can worship in any church of their choice without interference in a time when such freedom of spiritual life is denied the people of many lands. Well filled churches reflect the wholesome state of the soul of a nation and steady growth of church attendance in this country is one of the more inspiring signs of our times.

ANOTHER QUESTION MARK

Another question arises to perplex England and France in the announcement that Japan and Russia have reached a truce in their Manchoukouan war and may have formed an agreement of still more far reaching importance.

Thus in addition to pondering what Italy will do and what Russia will do, the western allies are faced with the problem of the future in Asia.

The answer is a little easier to guess and quite a bit more disconcerting. Mussolini, to whom war would be a hazardous enterprise, seems more likely each day to remain neutral. Stalin has more to gain as an onlooker than as combatant. Japan, however, is engaged in anti-British and anti-occidental campaign in China. A lasting solution of her quarrel with Russia would enable Japan to go about her business of consolidating her aims in the orient while Europe is too busy to interfere.

BRITISH DIPLOMACY

English diplomacy which for a century stood as the embodiment of the shrewdest manipulation of affairs of state, has taken a terrific beating in European affairs of recent years.

Battles around the council table instead of the battlefield built the little island up into a far flung empire and a world power during the golden Victorian era. Names like Disraeli and Gladstone stand supreme among those who have mapped the course of history. With Richelieu of France and Bismarck of Germany they carved world destiny and shaped nations.

It is a far cry from this statesmanship to Munich, to the failure of the negotiations in Moscow, to the fiasco when the democracies tried to stop Mussolini in Ethiopia, to the collapse of the League of Nations, to the scandalous flouting of English authority in the orient and all the whole series of events in which English diplomats have come off second best in the chessgame of international politics.

Changing theories of government have made international diplomacy more complex. The rules have been changed. Policies are created with lightning rapidity and statesmanship, like warfare, is turning to the use of the surprise attack and it looks as though England, where statesmanship has been a career running through generations of loyal Englishmen, has been slow in falling into the faster tempo of the times. There is, however, still the possibility that the more methodical procedure, tested and proved by the growth of empire, may still prove, in the long run, its mastery over the spectacular hit and run tactics of newer governments.

OTHER CONTRABAND

The squabble over whether the United States shall sell arms and munitions to warring nations loses sight of the fact that actual war materials are an insignificant part of the American shipments abroad, any part of which might eventually involve this country in quarrels.

The fuss over arms is likely to make people believe that this nation is ready to export great supplies of guns and munitions whereas it really is a very poor source for such lethal instruments. In the whole land is not a single munitions factory comparable to the great Skoda, Krupp or Vickers works in Europe. In fact military leaders here deplore America's lack of plants immediately adapted to uses of war in case mass production should be needed in a hurry.

We do, however, produce large quantities of other goods which have been placed on contraband list. Shipment of communications equipment, horses, lubricants and fuel and many other things are forbidden by the combatants and even food and clothing are on conditional contraband list. By the rules of war all these are subject to seizure yet they can be shipped on U. S. vessels and on credit to any foreign country without violating the neutrality regulations of this country.

It is highly improbable that the United States, in spite of what congress may do, will ever become an important source from which European armies can get guns or shells. We are manufacturing planes and airplane engines which England and France need desperately.

There is far less chance that we will get into trouble abroad by selling these on the cash and carry basis than there is that we will face serious "incidents" through the open policy of sending other contraband in American hulls.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, Sept. 19

According to the astral indications, this may be a dubious day, with affairs moving in a rut and difficult to accelerate into action despite strenuous application of force. Hostility may be aroused by belligerent attempts to remove obstacles, or there may be very stubborn, frustrating circumstances. More might be gained by tact, diplomacy or stratagem. In any case postponements may be advantageous.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather doubtful year, with impediments and obstacles forestalling efforts at progressiveness. Aggressive actions may provoke disagreeable opposition at a time when more diplomatic approach or finesse might be effective. Because of frustrating situations, it might be well to postpone certain moves until there are more propitious astral signs.

A child born on this day may be deep and studious but also slow and cautious or suspicious. It may be practical and industrious, but its mental grasp may be too confused for conspicuous initiative.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

Russia's military occupation of eastern Poland is an unescapable reminder that the trend of the European war depends in large degree at this juncture on the Soviet Union's intentions.

Even the possible extension of the war into a world conflict may hinge on Moscow.

Europe now stands at the first big cross-roads of the general upheaval. The turning that is taken will be determined by the interpretation which the Anglo-French allies place on Russia's action.

Neither Paris nor London thus far has expressed any official opinion regarding this development which has staggered both of them, even though it wasn't unexpected. They must decide quickly, however, whether to accept:

1. Russia's declaration that the occupation is merely to protect the Russian peoples of Poland, and that the Soviet intends to remain neutral. On the face of it this would presage a withdrawal of Russian forces when the need of protection passed.

2. Poland's charge that the Russian move constitutes aggression which would mean that Germany and Russia have partitioned Poland between them — an event which had been widely predicted by the European press. This would place England and France in the position of challenging Russia to war.

However, the allies may choose to regard that now, the fact remains that they have pledged themselves to free Poland from invasion. That means not only invasion from Germany, but from any other country.

Should the Anglo-French brotherhood defeat Germany, then they would be bound by the bond with Poland to try to eject from Poland any foreign force of occupation which refused to move out.

Since Poland already was tottering before the overwhelming German onslaught, the Russian occupation can scarcely make the little nation's position worse. Indeed, it may save the Poles from shedding more of their blood in an epic but hopeless effort to defend themselves.

The Anglo-French strategy, so far as is known, hadn't anticipated that Poland would be able to stand off the Germans, or that the allies would be able to give the Poles the immediate aid necessary to withstand the assault.

Rather have Britain and France been taking a long view of the war and planning to reestablish Poland in full sovereignty at the end of the conflict.

Other immediate effects of the invasion are such as to cause the Anglo-French allies deep concern. Hungary and the Balkans already had felt the breeze of the Russo-German anti-aggression pact and were treading circumspectly.

Takes 9 Medical Sections To Study Patient In 1939

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE PRESIDENT of the American Clinical and Climatological Association made an interesting contrast in his presidential address between the record of a sick person in his hospital in 1903 and the record of a sick person in his hospital in 1939.

In 1903 he had a patient, 51 years of age, who had done heavy work all his life and had indulged liberally in alcoholic beverages. He had no history of infectious diseases which would lead to heart disease, at a short time before admission to the hospital he became short of breath. This symptom became progressively worse and any exertion would cause severe paroxysms of shortness of breath. He could not sleep at night because his heart beat so that he could feel it, and he was unable to lie flat in bed. His ankles became swollen and he developed a cough.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The record of his examination, which included the use of the eyes and the ears of the physician, a sphygmometer and a stethoscope, recorded 17 lines of type. The record of his treatment occupies 25 lines.

Similar Symptoms
The patient in 1939 was 61 years of age and had similar symptoms. The record of his examination by means of the physician's eyes and ears, stethoscope and thermometer, is compressed into eight lines. But there follow five pages of records, such as this:

"The R. P. N. of the blood was 32 to 50 mg. per cent and the plasma C02 11 volumes per cent. The blood cholesterol varied from 154 to 235 mgm. per cent. The total serum protein was 5.7 per cent, the albumin 3.7 per cent and the globulin 2.2 per cent, the fasting blood sugar as 58 mgm. per cent. The ventricular rate was 90, the P. R. interval 0.22 of a sec. and the Q. R. S. 0.15 of a sec. R1 was notched, S2, S3 and S4 F were notched, T1 was inverted, T2, T3 and T4 were upright."

"Don't ask me to tell you exactly what this all means. I suppose in the course of time I could find out, but I am by no means sure from experience that I would know what it means.

The doctor seems to think that the examination in 1939 is greatly superior to the examination in 1903. He says "that the goal of a future science of internal medicine is the complete understanding of the mechanism of all diseases."

Studied by Sections
He notes that in the examination of the patient in 1939, the patient was studied by the division of physiology of the circulation and of physiology of respiration, which consists of two sections. The chemical study was conducted by five sections in the hospital. The clinical study had two sections, which consisted of one to study the physical condition of the patient and one to study the mental attitude.

To my mind, however, the one doctor who studied the patient in 1903 had a better understanding of the human being who lay in bed sick than all the nine sections which studied the patient in 1939.

After all, the most sensitive instrument for examining a human being is the mind and the understanding of another human being. All the instruments in the world and all the laboratories are not going to supplant the doctor at the bedside.

BACK TO CHURCH

This is the time of year when all churches experience a revival of interest. Pews which were empty most of the summer while visiting preachers talked to dwindling audiences are filling again and spiritual life of the nation gets into stride for the winter.

There will be more than the usual amount of interest this year. War always turns the mind of the world to religion. There is a solemnity in the hearts of people which finds expression in worship.

Religion is a good thing for any nation. Americans are fortunate that they can worship in any church of their choice without interference in a time when such freedom of spiritual life is denied the people of many lands. Well filled churches reflect the wholesome state of the soul of a nation and steady growth of church attendance in this country is one of the more inspiring signs of our times.

ANOTHER QUESTION MARK

Another question arises to perplex England and France in the announcement that Japan and Russia have reached a truce in their Manchoukouan war and may have formed an agreement of still more far reaching importance.

Thus in addition to pondering what Italy will do and what Russia will do, the western allies are faced with the problem of the future in Asia.

The answer is a little easier to guess and quite a bit more disconcerting. Mussolini, to whom war would be a hazardous enterprise, seems more likely each day to remain neutral. Stalin has more to gain as an onlooker than as combatant. Japan, however, is engaged in anti-British and anti-occidental campaign in China. A lasting solution of her quarrel with Russia would enable Japan to go about her business of consolidating her aims in the orient while Europe is too busy to interfere.

BRITISH DIPLOMACY

English diplomacy which for a century stood as the embodiment of the shrewdest manipulation of affairs of state, has taken a terrific beating in European affairs of recent years.

Battles around the council table instead of the battlefield built the little island up into a far flung empire and a world power during the golden Victorian era. Names like Disraeli and Gladstone stand supreme among those who have mapped the course of history. With Richelieu of France and Bismarck of Germany they carved world destiny and shaped nations.

It is a far cry from this statesmanship to Munich, to the failure of the negotiations in Moscow, to the fiasco when the democracies tried to stop Mussolini in Ethiopia, to the collapse of the League of Nations, to the scandalous flouting of English authority in the orient and all the whole series of events in which English diplomats have come off second best in the chessgame of international politics.

Changing theories of government have made international diplomacy more complex. The rules have been changed. Policies are created with lightning rapidity and statesmanship, like warfare, is turning to the use of the surprise attack and it looks as though England, where statesmanship has been a career running through generations of loyal Englishmen, has been slow in falling into the faster tempo of the times. There is, however, still the possibility that the more methodical procedure, tested and proved by the growth of empire, may still prove, in the long run, its mastery over the spectacular hit and run tactics of newer governments.

OTHER CONTRABAND

The squabble over whether the United States shall sell arms and munitions to warring nations loses sight of the fact that actual war materials are an insignificant part of the American shipments abroad, any part of which might eventually involve this country in quarrels.

The fuss over arms is likely to make people believe that this nation is ready to export great supplies of guns and munitions whereas it really is a very poor source for such lethal instruments. In the whole land is not a single munitions factory comparable to the great Skoda, Krupp or Vickers works in Europe. In fact military leaders here deplore America's lack of plants immediately adapted to uses of war in case mass production should be needed in a hurry.

We do, however, produce large quantities of other goods which have been placed on contraband list. Shipment of communications equipment, horses, lubricants and fuel and many other things are forbidden by the combatants and even food and clothing are on conditional contraband list. By the rules of war all these are subject to seizure yet they can be shipped on U. S. vessels and on credit to any foreign country without violating the neutrality regulations of this country.

It is highly improbable that the United States, in spite of what congress may do, will ever become an important source from which European armies can get guns or shells. We are manufacturing planes and airplane engines which England and France need desperately.

There is far less chance that we will get into trouble abroad by selling these on the cash and carry basis than there is that we will face serious "incidents" through the open policy of sending other contraband in American hulls.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, Sept. 19

According to the astral indications, this may be a dubious day, with affairs moving in a rut and difficult to accelerate into action despite strenuous application of force. Hostility may be aroused by beligerent attempts to remove obstacles, or there may be very stubborn, frustrating circumstances. More might be gained by tact, diplomacy or stratagem. In any case postponements may be advantageous.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather doubtful year, with impediments and obstacles forestalling efforts at progressiveness. Aggressive actions may provoke disagreeable opposition at a time when more diplomatic approach or finesse might be effective. Because of frustrating situations, it might be well to postpone certain moves until there are more propitious astral signs.

A child born on this day may be deep and studious but also slow and cautious or suspicious. It may be practical and industrious, but its mental grasp may be too confused for conspicuous initiative.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Associated Press Foreign Affair Writer

Russia's military occupation of eastern Poland is an unescapable reminder that the trend of the European war depends in large degree at this juncture on the Soviet Union's intentions.

Even the possible extension of the war into a world conflict may hinge on Moscow.

Europe now stands at the first big cross-roads of the general upheaval. The turning that is taken will be determined by the interpretation which the Anglo-French allies place on Russia's action.

Neither Paris nor London thus far has expressed any official opinion regarding this development which has staggered both of them, even though it wasn't unexpected. They must decide quickly, however, whether to accept:

1. Russia's declaration that the occupation is merely to protect the Russian peoples of Poland, and that the Soviet intends to remain neutral. On the face of it this would presage a withdrawal of Russian forces when the need of protection passed.

2. Poland's charge that the Russian move constitutes aggression which would mean that Germany and Russia have partitioned Poland between them — an event which had been widely predicted by the European press. This would place England and France in the position of challenging Russia to war.

However, the allies may choose to regard that now, the fact remains that they have pledged themselves to free Poland from invasion. That means not only invasion from Germany, but from any other country.

Should the Anglo-French brotherhood defeat Germany, then they would be bound by the bond with Poland to try to eject from Poland any foreign force of occupation which refused to move out.

Since Poland already was tottering before the overwhelming German onslaught, the Russian occupation can scarcely make the little nation's position worse. Indeed, it may save the Poles from shedding more of their blood in an epic but hopeless effort to defend themselves.

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW

by May Christie

Guy noted the intimate attitude of the couple by the fireplace. Also, that Toni moved sharply back from Brock Milbank.

Rather than annoyance, that suggested embarrassment at being caught, he figured.

There was a flush on her cheeks. A girl or two was disgruntled.

She came forward, stammering a greeting. "I think you two have met before."

The men nodded. Brock looked anxiously amused.

"I should say we have! Often at Harriet's."

Guy gave him a chilly glance.

"I'm dining at Harriet's tonight. She's a grand girl. Spouse you're going on there, too, old chap?"

Brock said airily.

"I don't think so."

So he was staying here? Dining with Toni? Nice work!

The man was influential. Had a lot of money. Harriet thought highly of him. It would be useful, thought Brock, to cultivate him.

"Nice place Toni's got here!" The abbreviation of her name slipped out before he was aware of it. But he'd cover it up by explaining they'd known each other for ages!

"It is attractive," commented Guy looking around.

"Genuine antiques," Brock rattled off. "It ought to be good. It came down through Antonette's family. Most of it was in the old chateau on the Loire. I was telling Harriet what a lovely place that is—or, rather, was. You said it, Antonette, didn't you? Such a frightful pity!"

Toni gave him a look that was intended to silence him.

But Brock, before arriving at the apartment, had been at his club. Numerous Scotch-and-sodas mingled rather dangerously with Toni's cocktail. He was exhilarated, too, at the thought of Christmas dinner at Harriet's.

Many times I stayed at the old chateau, when Toni and I were girl and boy."

Seeing the other man unimpressed, he was annoyed. And why did Toni look at him so funny?

He'd say something that would give her reason to wish he'd said quiet!

And jolly times we had in San Francisco, didn't we, Toni?"

She could not face this.

"If you excuse me, I must have a word with Zephine. Mr. Flagg, will you pour yourself a cocktail? Brock, I'll say adieu!—with a meaningful glance at the clock."

"Righto. I'll just have another little drink. But I mustn't be late."

Toni slipped into the pantry, pulling the door behind her, but leaving it a crack ajar, so she might hear what they said.

With a lift of her heart, she heard Guy pat a finish to Brock's reminiscences, changing the subject to some question of politics.

In her low shoes, Zephine padded in.

"Madame, how you startled me! The sharp eyes of the maid held a fox expression."

So two could play at the game of eavesdropping.

"There will be two gentlemen for dinner, madame? Shall I lay an extra plate?"

"No," Toni at this moment felt that she disliked Zephine. Such hard, bright eyes! Why hadn't she had the sense to select her own servant?

Zephine was thinking, shrewdly: "She is disturbed that these two gentlemen meet! She had had the affair with the red-haired one. She would wish to have a grande attitude with the dark-haired one, so handsome one! She is deceitful, because she is the sweetheart of Monsieur Niklas!"

It would be unwise, however, to report her suspicions to the man who paid her salary. For the angry, jealous Niklas might close the apartment and she, Zephine, would be the loser!

She was much too smart to cut off her nose to spite her face. Report to Niklas that the conductor of his belle marquise was seemly. But for her own ends, get a complete line on the doings of this girl! And then, make her pay for it!

The rich promoter probably kept her short of actual money, but in such an expensive setting, not forgetting the jewelry, it wouldn't be hard for his mistress to raise cash.

Zephine's astute mind had already assayed a necklace, brooch, ring and bracelet, fashioned of emeralds and diamonds, at several hundred thousand francs. And they were only clever imitations!

Toni went through the kitchen and round to the dining room. The table was completely laid. A silver centerpiece held sprays of feathery mimosa, like sunshine. Tall red candles, set in silver candlesticks, awaited her order for lighting.

It all looked homelike and lovely. Through the iron gates dividing this room from the salon, she heard Brock take his departure. Thank heaven for that!

Toni went into her room to apply fresh powder to her flushed face, and a touch of lipstick.

The evening, she felt would progress from now on.

Nervous as a schoolgirl with her first sweetheart, she went out to the salon.

Guy was standing with his back to the fire.

She thought: "He's so distinguished looking!" Brock had looked immature and silly beside him.

"May I, too, have a cocktail? It will be my first today. I think I deserve one."

"Of course." He sprang forward and poured one for her. "These are excellent. You must be an experienced mixer."

Was there a shade of accusation in the words?

"In France we do not mix cocktails. What I know, I have learned in America," smiled Toni.

"In San Francisco?"

"Not, why do you say that?"

"Because it was the very last thing I learned about you. You can't blame me for being interested. You lead such a fascinating life."

Again that undercurrent of hidden meaning.

"A hard life. Mr. Halstead-Flagg."

"Oh, come, come. You have a very good time of it, my dear marquise. How formal they had grown!—thought Toni.

She could not resist saying: "The sort of time of which you obviously disapprove."

"Why make me such an ogre? Each of us is surely entitled to lead his or her own life!"

"That being so," she replied shortly, "perhaps we might sit down on this couch?"

"The couch of gold?" Smiling appreciatively, his eyes narrowed.

"Don't you find it rather beautiful?"—as she seated herself, and, glass in hand, leaned back, looking up at him. He seemed miles removed!

"Beautiful—and expensive. La Belle marquise surrounded by gold!"

"Why not? It's mine, isn't it? Have you any objection?" she was nettled.

"It is not for me to have any objection, my dear."

"You blame me for loving beauty?" she asked.

"I, too, love beauty. But sometimes I yield to it. I'm only a mere man. I try to be wise."

"You mean, discreet?" she interpreted.

He gave a cryptic smile. His glance swept the great hall, the gilded chairs, sofas and mirrors.

"You love gold, don't you?"

She understood the implication. She was furious. "Doesn't everybody?"

"Ah! That depends."

"Unconsciously her left hand fingered a gold pendant that hung from a slim chain around her neck."

"That's handsome. And rather oddly designed. Would you mind letting me have a closer look at it?" He bent over Toni.

A moment or two ago, she would have welcomed his nearness. But not now. Quickly she removed pendant and chain.

"Look all you want to," she said ungraciously, handing them to him.

The chain dangling, he held the pendant in his hand.

"Unusually heavy for its size. Might I ask you where you got it?" He peered down at it, turning it over, examining it closely.

"You may ask, assuredly, but I do not have to answer," she said pertly. It was the property of Niklas. He had loaned it to her for a performance.

Zephine stuck her head through the doorway.

"Dinner is ready when madame is ready," she announced in French. "I will ring when I wish dinner to be served," snapped Toni in the same language.

She rose, went over to the spinet, struck a chord.

At the same time, she was covertly watching Guy. Saw him take a small magnifying glass from his vest pocket, the better to examine the trinket.

How very odd! More interested in the bauble than in her! Why, he even turned his back on her now.

She moved toward him. Heard him give a stifled exclamation. His whole figure seemed to be suddenly galvanized.

She had a queer sense of foreboding at that moment, though it was quite unaccountable.

Almost directly afterward, there was an acrid smell of something burning.

"What on earth is that?"

He swung around. For a queer, tense moment their eyes met. There was a distinct challenge in Guy's.

"She knows! She's a consummate actress!" he was thinking. Would she bluff things out? Or, furious at discovery, would she order him from the apartment?

He could have her arrested! She must know that. She was at his mercy. How would she act?

Under his sense of shock at what he had just discovered was an overwhelming feeling of having been let down. He had hoped against hope that his surmises had been incorrect. In so far as the lovely Antonette was concerned, anyhow.

And this had proved his optimism wrong!

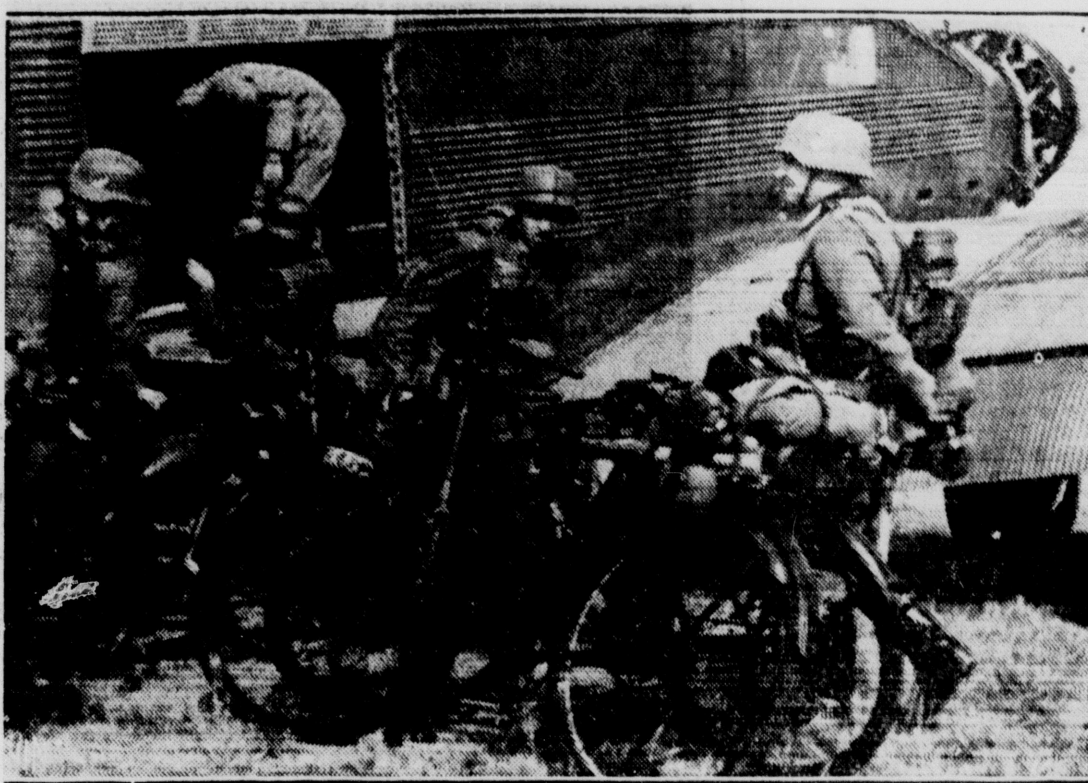

"Would you please open the windows? That appalling odor must be from the fire. I imagine it's my new maid's fault. The better kind of logs are expensive, but I recollect an agent coming to the door trying to palm off on us some wood from a demolished ship. Zephine bought the rotten wood, possibly pocketing the difference. I must speak to her."

Reluctantly, he had to admire the manner in which she carried it off.

date, although all of the drivers both tested and untested, were considered safe, cautious and capable.

The conclusions from the two years' experiments are that the tests made better drivers out of good ones and materially improved both the technique and the caution of the poor drivers.

An extension of the test also was made on drivers who possess talents and others who were rated as just ordinary or poor.

One hundred and forty-four of these were tested and compared with a similar group of untested drivers.

During the two years of the test, the tested drivers had 85.5 per cent fewer accidents than the untested group.

DRIVING AIDED BY PSYCHOLOGY

University Tests Prove Safety Factor Can Be Increased

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 15.—Applied psychology may yet solve the problem of chronic automobile traffic violators, as has been demonstrated by tests made here for the past two years.

The psychological driving test has been perfected by Dr. C. E. Brown, head of the department of psychology at the University of California, working in conjunction with E. D. Fletcher of the state department of motor vehicles.

The tests were carried out in the usual research manner of comparing the results attained with one group of drivers which had taken the tests and another group which had not.

The results as obtained from a group of 97 of the state's worst traffic violators showed a drop of 91 per cent in minor violations for the group as a whole.

Proved Two Ways

A similar study group of chronic and dangerous violators remained untested. These continued to show an increase in their violations.

For the two years in which the tested group showed a steady decrease in the number of violations they committed, the untested group had 557 convictions for traffic violations as against only 164 convictions for the tested drivers.

In addition to these tests in chronically bad drivers, similar tests also were made on a group of truck drivers of a large corporation which lent its men for the experiment.

Variations in their driving efficiency were measured in terms of accident frequency before and after testing.

Following the administration of the special tests, the records of the tested drivers improved even more.

Rapid Improvement Shown

A group of untested good drivers from the same company, used as a control group, experienced more accidents after the testing.

date, although all of the drivers both tested and untested, were considered safe, cautious and capable.

The conclusions from the two years' of experiments are that the tests made better drivers out of good ones and materially improved both the technique and the caution of the poor drivers.

An extension of the test also was made on drivers who possess talents and others who were rated as just ordinary or poor.

One hundred and forty-four of these were tested and compared with a similar group of untested drivers.

During the two years of the test, the tested drivers had 85.5 per cent fewer accidents than the untested group.

"Luxury Ride" Plymouths For 1940 Are Being Shown By Dealers In Salem

SMOOTH TIRES ARE DANGEROUS

Last Few Hundred Miles Save You Very Little Money

Some people make a hobby of seeing how close they can come to breaking their necks setting new records with their tires. Says Lee Butler, Kelly Springfield dealer located on W. State st. at Butler's Service center, Salem's Plymouth model station, today:

Tires cost about half as much to buy and run as much as eight or ten times as far as they did 15 or 20 years ago. Figures like these don't make people realize that they can't need to run their tires the last mile. But they only "run" tires out of most of us. We want our tires to last.

When tires get smooth, the average driver figures he's saving the extra cost of a new tire by postponing its purchase. Actually, he's saving only the value of those last few 100's of risky miles and the saving isn't worth the gamble. Ninety per cent of tire trouble comes in the last 15 per cent of mileage.

Did you ever figure how little these last 100 dangerous miles are worth? From 60c to 90c! Is that enough to risk your neck for?

You can really save by swapping your old tires for safe, tough new ones that will give you the protection you have stopped getting from those thin, road-worn, old ones.

Combine Beauty and Talent

Held over after one of the most successful entertainment weeks this year at the Silver cocktail room, the Winifred McDonnell trio will continue to entertain Metzger hotel patrons this week. Known to Bismarck, N. D., Helena, Mont., Wisconsin Rapids, Appleton, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and other points north and west, as "The Girls From the Golden West," are, for the first time, visiting in the "east," as they think of Ohio.

String musicians and singers, every one of them, they have brought to the city a new high in entertainment value and Salem people have been quick to appreciate them.

There's nothing stilted, nothing mechanical about this group. They fairly radiate personality in their lovely, unassuming manners, their work evidencing a sincerity found lacking in many groups of the type.

They have, of course, more to their repertoire than beauty. The fact is, every one is a talented musician, which emphasizes the value of their programs.

"Moods in Rhythm" they call their work, as they present the latest style harmonies to increasing audiences every evening.

Persons who want anything, know The News is the Want Medium in this vicinity. So read it.

NEWEST MODELS LARGER, BETTER

More Auto For the 1940 Dollar Is Apparent In Every Line

Completely new from bumper to bumper much larger and more luxurious in every respect, new 1940 Plymouth "Roadking" and Deluxe models are being formally presented to Salem motorists by The Smith Garage and Harris' Garage Plymouth dealers here, this week.

These are said to wipe out all previous concepts of car size and motoring luxury possible for vehicles in the lowest price class.

Greater "eye appeal," as well as larger size, is evident at once in the simple display of new Plymouth body styles ready for unveiling here by the local dealers.

In appearance, added richness is gained by the fresh chrome treatment of grille and cat-walk louvers. Luxury keynotes the style of new, massive fenders and the larger body—which, by actual measurement, contains 12 cubic feet more space inside.

More "automobile" for the 1940 motor dollar is apparent in every line. The new Plymouth is built on a bigger, 117-inch wheelbase—but considerably more important as an index of increased size, the new car's total exterior surface is 17 square feet greater than before.

Running Boards Optional

Matching this wholesale increase in car size, the new Plymouth presents for 1940 a new "luxury ride"—gained through complete redistribution of weight; wider vision through new safety glass that also reduces eye-fatigue; new "Sealed-Beam" headlamps that give 50-65 per cent more road light; improved steering post gearshift now standard on the low-priced "Roadking" as well as Deluxe; big, economical Floating Power engine with vital parts now superfinished for greater smoothness and longer life; new design transmission and clutch for quicker, easier shifting; reminder safety signals on all instruments; and a score of other improvements.

Below-the-surface ruggedness, driving comfort and safety in addition to the bigger, wider, sound-proofed bodies and longer wheelbase.

Get low on this year's longer, heavier frame is a bigger body—much wider and longer as well as lower than before—that now flares outward at the bottom instead of curving in at the base. All body styles this year for the first time come with or without running boards. These are replaced, if so desired, by smart fender guards and a chrome decorated moulding beneath the doors to emphasize the bottom flare.

New "Unit" Design

Baby lines flow in continuous curves to include the new fenders, hood and radiator shell—all now essentially part of the new "unit" design—and end at the back in a beautiful new streamlined rear deck that slopes back at 45 degrees. The new streamlined rear end completely conceals this year's larger trunk that is lighted at night by inside "windows" at the back of the two tail lamps.

For 1940, the whole front end is completely new although it bears Plymouth's unmistakable identity. This year's grille is more nearly a solid section in body color, broken only by a bright metal center strip and three decorative louvers at either side, high and close to the chromium belt.

The lower grille, however, is much bigger, with larger ventilating sections and fresh chrome treatment on the cat-walk louvers between the fenders. These now provide 270 square inches of added ventilating surface for air intake to the radiator core.

Larger, more massive fenders, front and rear, match the bigger proportions of the new automobile. Both front and rear fenders are higher at the crown, and lengthen out over all four wheels to add horizontal emphasis to the car. This style theme is repeated in two parallel speed lines on each fender, directly over the wheel.

Fenders Fern Hood
Front fenders curve inward and up to form the sides of the bigger hood, in Plymouth's new design. This year's hood is broader as it weeps away from the much wider cowl, and the top panel stretches 13 inches farther forward at the belt as it now curves without a break beyond the radiator core and down to meet the 1940 grille.

Hood opening this year is same as before, with only the top panels hinged for service. A twist of the handle raises one top section part way for convenience in lifting, and an automatic spring holds the panel in open position.

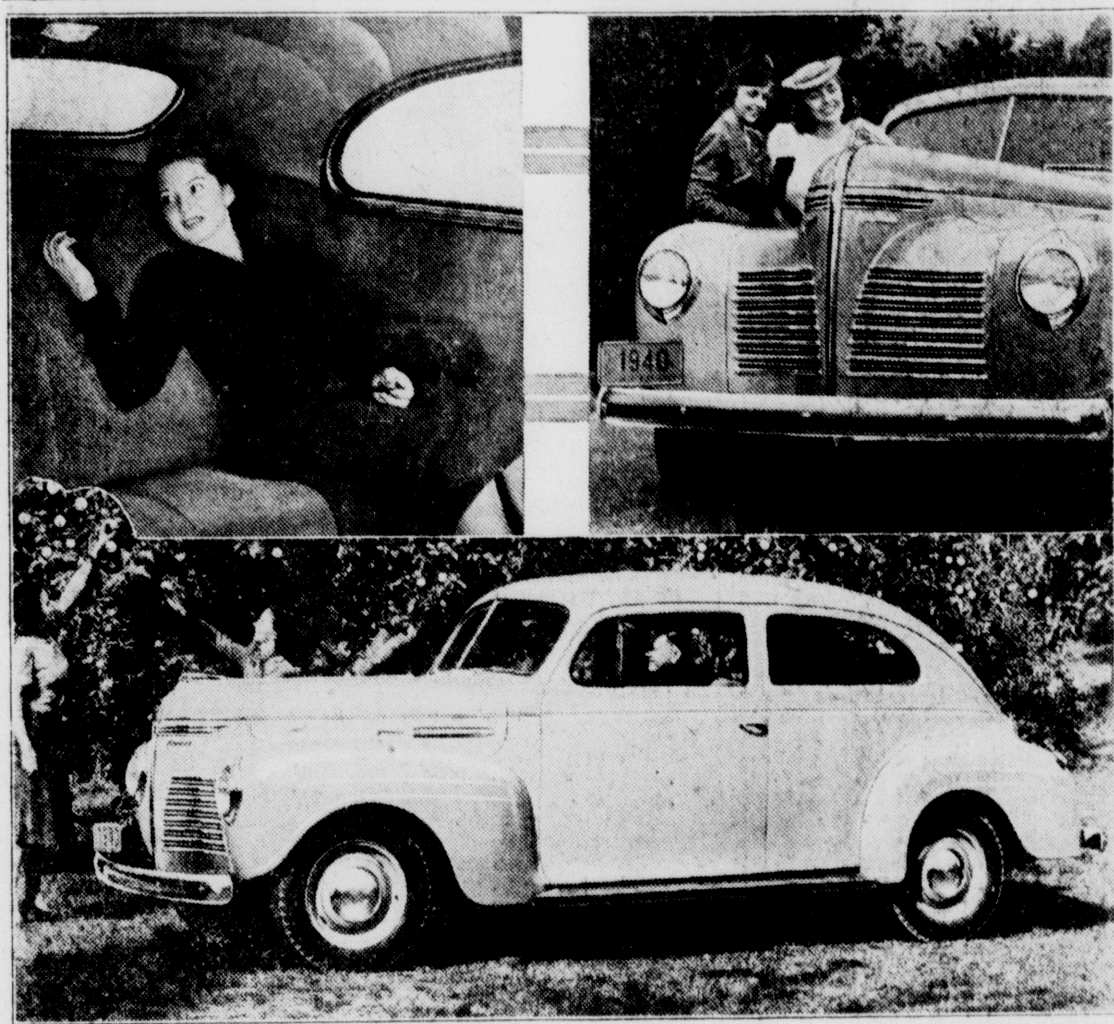

Streamlined into the front fender contour are the greatly improved new "Sealed Beam" headlamps—latest development of the auto industry in collaboration with the Motor Vehicle Commissioners of the 48 states, and regarded by many as the Number One safety improvement since shatterproof glass. These give 50-65 per cent brighter road lighting at night, without glare to other motorists. The new lamps have reflector, filament and lens sealed together in a single unit for maximum efficiency.

HUMPTULIPS, Wash.—When Grayson P. Coe, a Chico, Cal., attorney sent some papers to be served addressed to "Constable, Humptulips, Wash." he did not know that Humptulips, Wash., did not have a constable. However, Postmistress Mrs. N. F. Loom's served the papers and sent Price a bill of $2.50 for service.

New Plymouth for 1940 Features "Luxury Ride"

Completely new from bumper to bumper is this 1940 Plymouth just announced, presenting a new concept of size and luxury obtainable in cars for the lowest price field. As these pictures show, stronger "eye appeal" is a feature of the new design, while the new 117-inch wheelbase permits a longer, wider, lower body containing much more passenger room. All passengers sit farther forward for a new kind of "luxury ride" gained by redistributing weight.

Running boards are optional on all body styles. Other Plymouth highlights this year: Improved steering post gearshift standard on "Roadking" as well as Deluxe; much better vision through larger windshield and windows; new "Sealed-Beam" headlamps; new design transmission and clutch for quicker, easier shifting, and big Floating Power engine with vital parts Superfinished for greater smoothness and longer life. Shown above is the "Roadking" 2-Door Sedan.

The Smith Garage at Third St. and Vine Ave. and the Harris Garage on West State St. at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing, are both displaying the "Luxury Ride" Plymouths in their showrooms.

ESSENTIAL COST CANNOT BE CUT

When Necessary Operations Are Impaired, Quality Is Lowered

Production methods in any dry cleaning plant govern the costs. Quantity of production depends upon the standard, or quality, of the work done.

L. C. Price, manager of the Paris Cleaners plant on the Benton rd., today explains what the above statements mean to the patron of any dry cleaning plant.

He says: "Many plants actually finish as many as 60 dresses per day per operator. Such speed undoubtedly lowers quality. At the Paris, where only thoroughly experienced help is hired, and where the most modern machinery is used an average of only six dresses per hour is the production rate."

"A little thought on this one phase of a highly developed industry would soon convince anyone who cares that work done at bargain rates must, to be profitable, leave much to be desired."

"To appear at its best, good cleaning must be handled carefully through the many steps in a dry cleaning plant. The final cost, of course, can be cut, but, the patron must remember when cost cutting impairs necessary operations, then the quality of production is bound to suffer."

TIME TO THINK OF BATTERIES

Kelley's Sohio Station Is Showing New Atlas Brand Line

It's time to think about the battery in your automobile. Because it is hidden away in the "innards" of your automobile, the battery often is neglected. It goes on and on, doing its work, and then, exhausted because of neglect, or, perhaps, because it has reached the end of its allotted span of life, it collapses and you have a battery problem.

It's fortunate if the "accident" happens at some point not too far from service.

The point is, however winter is coming. The strain on the battery is increased many times. It is possible to be caught in an uncomfortable position. So the reasonable thing to do is to determine now that you won't have any battery trouble this winter.

If you think there's a possibility of your needing a new battery, drop in at Kelley's Sohio service station, S. Lincoln and Pershing st., and look over the new line of Atlas batteries.

Kelley carries a complete line in the Atlas inventory. Atlas batteries carry rear panel visible val- ues with S. A. E. ratings. He can take care of your every problem in the battery line. It will pay you to stop in and talk with him.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa.—Patrolman Michael Reiser has devised a method of improving live plugs. He drills a large hole at the top and a smaller one at the bottom, filling the bait with dry ice and plugging the top hole. The plug, floating on the water, emits a trail of fumes which assertedly proves an attraction to large fish.

"Luxury Ride" Plymouths For 1940 Are Being Shown By Dealers In Salem

SMOOTH TIRES ARE DANGEROUS

Last Few Hundred Miles Save You Very Little Money

Some people make a hobby of seeing how close they can come to breaking their necks setting new mileage records with their tires," says Lee Butler, Kelly Springfield tire dealer located on W. State st. at Butler's Service center, Salem's Pennell model station, today.

Tires cost about half as much to buy and run as much as eight or ten times as far as they did 15 or 20 years ago. Figures like these ought to make people realize that they don't need to run their tires to the last mile. But they only wear "tire miles" out of most of us. We want our tires to last.

When tires get smooth, the average driver figures he's saving the entire cost of a new tire by postponing its purchase. Actually, he's saving only the value of those last few 100's of risky miles and the saving isn't worth the gamble. Ninety per cent of tire trouble comes in the last 10 per cent of mileage.

Did you ever figure how little these last 100 dangerous miles are worth? From 60c to 90c! Is that enough to risk your neck for?

You can really save by swapping your old tires for safe, tough new ones that will give you the protection you have stopped getting from those thin, road-worn, old ones.

Combine Beauty and Talent

Held over after one of the most successful entertainment weeks this year at the Silver cocktail room, the Winifred McDonnell trio will continue to entertain Metzger hotel patrons this week. Known to Bismarck, N. D., Helena, Mont., Wisconsin Rapids, Appleton, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and other points north and west, as "The Girls From the Golden West," are, for the first time, visiting in the "east," as they think of Ohio.

String musicians and singers, every one of them, they have brought to the city a new high in entertainment value and Salem people have been quick to appreciate them.

There's nothing stilted, nothing mechanical about this group. They fairly radiate personality in their lovely, unassuming manners, their work evidencing a sincerity found lacking in many groups of the type. They have, of course, more to their repertoire than beauty. The fact is, every one is a talented musician, which emphasizes the value of their programs.

"Moods in Rhythm," they call their work, as they present the latest style harmonies to increasing audiences every evening.

NEWEST MODELS LARGER, BETTER

More Auto For the 1940 Dollar Is Apparent In Every Line

Completely new from bumper to bumper, much larger and more luxurious in every respect, new 1940 Plymouth "Roadking" and Deluxe models are being formally presented to Salem motorists by The Smith Garage and Harris' Garage Plymouth dealers here, this week.

These are said to wipe out all previous concepts of car size and motoring luxury possible for vehicles in the lowest price class.

Greater "eye appeal," as well as larger size, is evident at once in the simple display of new Plymouth body styles ready for unveiling here by the local dealers.

In appearance, added richness is gained by the fresh chrome treatment of grille and cat-walk louvers. Luxury keynotes the style of new, massive fenders and the larger body—which, by actual measurement, contains 12 cubic feet more space inside.

More "automobile" for the 1940 motor dollar is apparent in every line. The new Plymouth is built on a bigger, 117-inch wheelbase—but considerably more important as an index of increased size, the new car's total exterior surface is 17 square feet greater than before.

Running Boards Optional

Matching this wholesale increase in car size, the new Plymouth presents for 1940 a new "luxury ride"—gained through complete redistribution of weight; wider vision through new safety glass that also reduces eye-fatigue; new "Sealed-Beam" headlamps that give 50-65 per cent more road light; improved steering post gearshift now standard on the low-priced "Roadking" as well as Deluxe; big, economical Floating Power engine with vital parts now superfinished for greater smoothness and longer life; new design transmission and clutch for quicker, easier shifting; reminder safety signals on all instruments, and a score of other improvements in below-the-surface ruggedness, driving comfort and safety in addition to the bigger, wider, sound-proofed bodies and longer wheel-base.

Eet low on this year's longer, heavier frame is a bigger body—much wider and longer as well as lower than before. Now, fenders curving at the bottom instead of outward at the base. All body styles this year for the first time come with or without running boards. These are replaced, if so desired, by smart fender guards and a chrome decorated moulding beneath the doors to emphasize the bottom floor.

New "Unit" Design. Body lines flow in continuous curves to include the new fenders, hood and radiator shell—all now essentially part of the new "unit" design—and end at the back in a beautiful new streamlined rear deck that slopes back at 45 degrees. The new streamlined rear end completely conceals this year's larger trunk that is lighted at night by inside "windows" at the back of the two tail lamps.

For 1940, the whole front end is completely new although it bears Plymouth's unmistakable identity. This year's grille is more nearly a solid section in body color, broken only by a bright metal center strip and three decorative louvers at either side, high and close to the chromium belt.

The lower grille, however, is much bigger, with larger ventilating sections and fresh chrome treatment on the cat-walk louvers between the fenders. These now provide 270 square inches of added ventilating surface for air intake to the radiator core.

Larger, more massive fenders, front and rear, match the bigger proportions of the new automobile. Both front and rear fenders are higher at the crown, and lengthen out over all four wheels to add horizontal emphasis to the car. This style theme is repeated in two parallel speed lines on each fender, directly over the wheel.

Fenders Form Hood. Front fenders curve inward and up to form the sides of the bigger hood, in Plymouth's new design. This year's hood is broader as it weeps away from the much wider cowl, and the top panel stretches 13 inches farther forward at the belt as it now curves without a break beyond the radiator core and down to meet the 1940 grille.

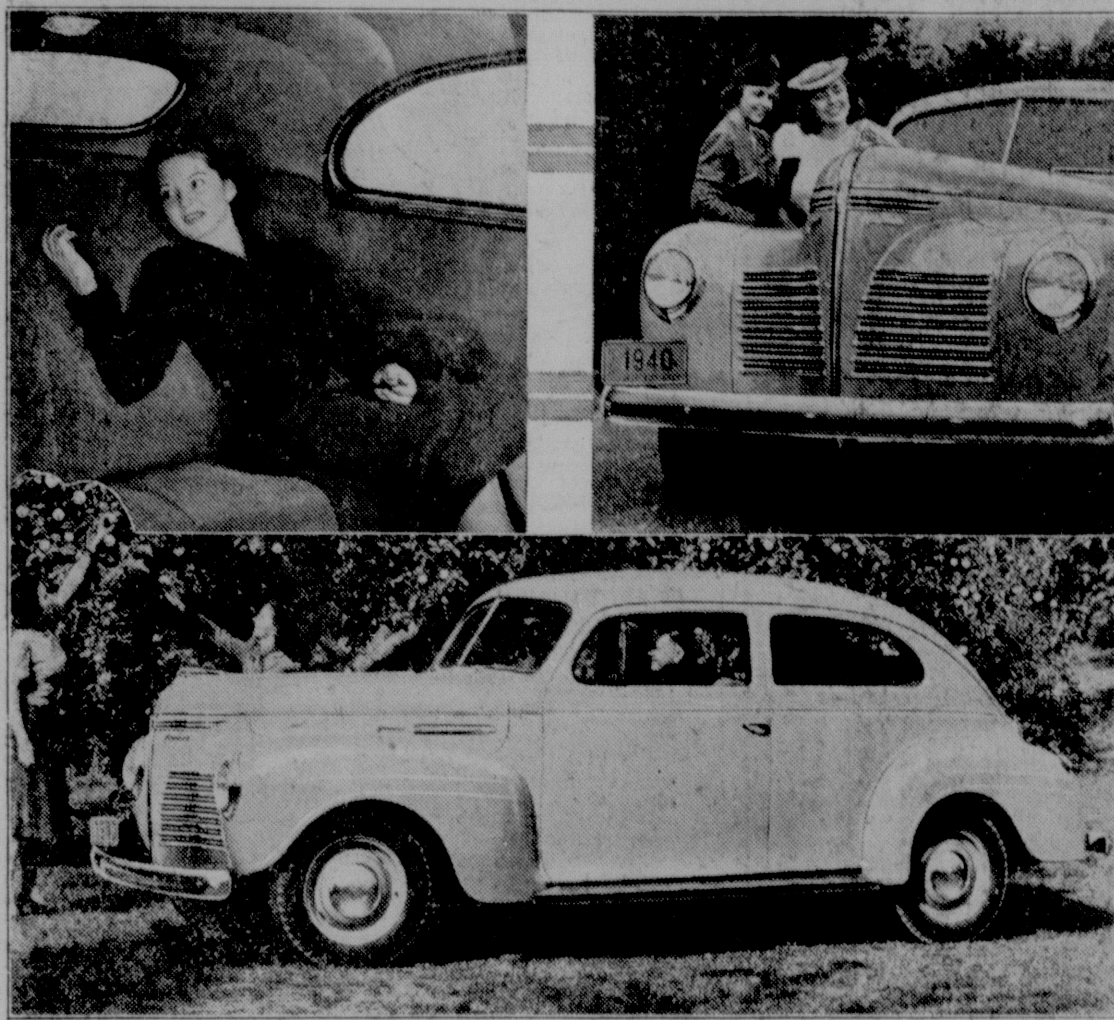

Hood opening this year is same as before, with only the top panels hinged for service. A twist of the hand raises one top section part way for convenience in lifting, and an automatic spring holds the panel in open position.

Streamlined into the front fender contour are the greatly improved new "Sealed Beam" headlamps—latest development of the auto industry in collaboration with the Motor Vehicle Commissioners of the 48 states, and regarded by many as the Number One safety improvement since shatterproof glass. These give 50-65 per cent brighter road lighting at night, without glare to other motorists. The new lamps have reflector, filament and lens sealed together in a single unit for maximum efficiency.

HUMPTULIPS, Wash. — When Grayson Price, a Chico, Cal., attorney sent some papers to be served addressed to "Constable, Humptulips, Wash.," he did not know that Humptulips, Wash., did not have a constable. However, Postmistress Mrs. N. F. Loom's served the papers and sent Price a bill of $2.50 for service.

New Plymouth for 1940 Features "Luxury Ride"

Completely new from bumper to bumper is this 1940 Plymouth just announced, presenting a new concept of size and luxury obtainable in cars for the lowest price field. As these pictures show, stronger "eye appeal" is a feature of the new design, while the new 117-inch wheelbase permits a longer, wider, lower body containing much more passenger room. All passengers sit farther forward for a new kind of "luxury ride," gained by redistributing weight.

Running boards are optional on all body styles. Other Plymouth highlights this year: Improved steering post gearshift standard on "Roadking" as well as Deluxe; much better vision through larger windshield and windows; new "Sealed-Beam" headlamps; new design transmission and clutch for quicker, easier shifting, and big Floating Power engine with vital parts Superfinished for greater smoothness and longer life. Shown above is the "Roadking" 2-Door Sedan.

The Smith Garage at Third St. and Vine Ave. and the Harris Garage on West State St. at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing, are both displaying the "Luxury Ride" Plymouths in their showrooms.

TIME TO THINK OF BATTERIES

Kelley's Sohio Station Is Showing New Atlas Brand Line

It's time to think about the battery in your automobile. Because it is hidden away in the "innards" of your automobile, the battery often is neglected. It goes on and on, doing its work, and then, exhausted because of neglect, or, perhaps, because it has reached the end of its allotted span of life, it collapses and you have a battery problem.

It's fortunate if the "accident" happens at some point not too far from service.

The point is, however, winter is coming. The strain on the battery is increased many times. It is possible to be caught in an uncomfortable position. So the reasonable thing to do is to determine now that you won't have any battery trouble this winter.

If you think there's a possibility of your needing a new battery, drop in at Kelley's Sohio service station, S. Lincoln and Pershing st., and look over the new line of Atlas batteries.

Kelley carries a complete line in the Atlas inventory. Atlas batteries carry rear panel visible values with S. A. E. ratings. He can take care of your every problem in the battery line. It will pay you to stop in and talk with him.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Patrolman Michael Reiser has devised a method of improving live plugs. He drills a large hole at the top and a smaller one at the bottom, filling the bait with dry ice and plugging the top hole. The plug, floating on the water, emits a trail of fumes which assertedly proves an attraction to large fish.

ESSENTIAL COST CANNOT BE CUT
When Necessary Operations Are Impaired, Quality Is Lowered
Production methods in any dry cleaning plant govern the costs. Quantity of production depends upon the standard, or quality, of the work done.
L. C. Price, manager of the Paris Cleaners plant on the Benton rd., today explains what the above statements mean to the patron of any dry cleaning plant.
He says: "Many plants actually finish as many as 60 dresses per day per operator. Such speed undoubtedly lowers quality. At the Paris, where only thoroughly experienced help is hired, and where the most modern machinery is used, an average of only six dresses per hour is the production rate."
"A little thought on this one phase of a highly developed industry would soon convince anyone who cares that work done at bargain rates must, to be profitable, leave much to be desired."
"To appear at its best, good cleaning must be handled carefully through the many steps in a dry cleaning plant. The final cost, of course, can be cut, but, the patron must remember, when cost cutting impairs necessary operations, then the quality of production is bound to suffer."

Caplan, McQuilkin To Play For Golf Club Championship

REACH FINALS OF SALEM GOLF CLUB TOURNAMENT

Caplan Gains One-up Victory Over Harwood In Semi-Finals

A one-up victory over Dr. Richard Harwood in a semi-final match yesterday advanced Max Caplan to the finals of the Club Championship tournament at the Salem Golf Club.

Caplan will face Defending Champion Carl McQuilkin in the 36-hole finals of the tournament. McQuilkin won his way into the final round by defeating J. M. Kelly, 4 and 3, in the other semi-final match yesterday.

The championship match is expected to be played next weekend. N. I. Walken, chairman of the men's contest committee, announced today. The date and time for the match will be announced later this week, Walken said.

Shoot Consistent Golf Both Caplan and McQuilkin shot consistently in the 70's to reach the finals, and a close match is expected when the two shotmakers battle for the club's most-prized championship.

Caplan was given his stiffest battle of the tournament by Dr. Harwood in the semi-finals. His other victories were by decisive margins. He defeated R. S. Hostetler, 4 and 3, in the quarter-finals and Robert Wright, 4 and 3, in the first round.

McQuilkin enjoyed comparatively smooth sailing in advancing to the finals. His 4-and-3 victory over Kelley was typical of the steady showing he has made throughout the tournament. He won over Richard Strain, 4 and 3, in the first round and L. W. Knox, 5 and 4, in the quarter finals.

Sixteen of the club's leading golfers competed in the tournament, a non-handicap event, which completes the club's summer schedule.

Bob Riggs Wins National Title

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Bobby Riggs, the Chicago minister's son, finally has won the national men's tennis championship and made good a promise to himself of three years' standing.

He reached his goal late yesterday by knocking the spots from young Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, in 58 minutes of endeavor.

Bobby said he probably would continue to play as an amateur two more years at least long enough to defend his Wimbledon and American titles next year.

Alice Marble of Beverly Hills won the women's title for the third time and gained permanent possession of the gaudy trophy by defeating brilliant Helen Jacobs, 6-0, 8-10, 6-4.

The Indians had a field day in the second tilt, winning 18 to 5 on 17 hits, nine bases on balls, and five Philadelphia errors. Southpaw Al Milnar got the benefit of the tribal scoring spree to register his 12th win of the season. Buck Ross started and lost for the A's.

Billows had what he thought was a good luck charm when he met Marvin (Bud) Ward, 26, of Spokane, Wash., in Saturday's championship battle, but it didn't help him much.

Ward won the match and the title, 7 and 5, clinching a week of brilliant play over the 7,022-yard North Shore Country club course. So after the match Billows returned to Charlie Yates of Atlanta, Ga., the white linen cap he had worn as a charm. It was the same cap that Yates wore when he won the British amateur title in 1938. But it didn't seem to work for either of them here at North Shore.

Canton Takes Loop Playoff

CANTON, Sept. 18.—Double laurels, first the pennant and now the league championship, completed the Canton Terriers conquest of the Mid-Atlantic league fortunes today.

The final step to the glory came last night when the Terriers whipped Springfield's Indians, 5 to 2, for the fourth straight time in the league championship series. Springfield took the first game of the playoff.

There was little doubt all season long that Canton had the class of the loop, but some critics figured the Terriers might get a bit more opposition in the playoffs than developed.

After sewing up the pennant with no particular strain, the Pups brushed off Akron unceremoniously in the preliminary playoff to run up against Springfield and its staff of crack moundmen in the finals.

While the Terriers didn't get any great number of hits in any one of the five games, they put to good advantage those they did get.

The pennant was worth $700 and the championship an equal amount. Springfield got $300.

INDIANS FAIL TO COP THIRD

Split With A's And Lose Chance To Take Over Show Position

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—The Cleveland Indians, who kicked away a chance to go into third place in the American league yesterday when they split a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics, met the A's again today in the final game of the summer between the two teams.

Johnny Allen, who has had difficulty lately in getting past the sixth inning, was Manager Oscar Vitt's mound choice, probably opposing Lynn Nelson. The Tribe is still just half a game behind the Chicago White Sox who broke even with Boston in a twin bill.

Five errors in the book and several of omission cost Bob Feller a 4 to 3 defeat in the opener yesterday, a game he might have won two more years at least long enough to defend his Wimbledon and American titles next year.

Feller fanned seven batters bringing his season's total to 224. George Carter, who relieved Rookie Lester Crab in the seventh, got credit for the win.

The Indians had a field day in the second tilt, winning 18 to 5 on 17 hits, nine bases on balls, and five Philadelphia errors. Southpaw Al Milnar got the benefit of the tribal scoring spree to register his 12th win of the season. Buck Ross started and lost for the A's.

CLEVELAND — The sky is virtually clouded with toy balloons these days, since 14-year-old Bob Besser sent off several with a "finder please notify" note attached and received an answer from Francis Emerson, of Hamilton, Ont. Now Bob sends out balloons almost daily hoping to get a reply from Mexico.

Teams are expected to submit their rosters to the newly-elected secretary.

The meeting will not interfere with league activities since it will be held between the early and late shifts of bowling.

SALEM RIDERS OUTCLASSED BY ZELIENOPLE, PA.

Old Furnace Club Posts 13-4 Victory In Polo Game Sunday

The Salem Polo club felt the sting of defeat again Sunday, losing to the Old Furnace club of Zelienople, Pa., 13 to 4, in a Penn-Ohio league game played before a large crowd at the Ellsworth rd. field.

It was the Salem riders' fourth straight setback and the worst defeat they have suffered on their home field this season.

Salem Outplayed The Old Furnace poloists completely outplayed their Salem rivals in every department of the game as they piled up a four goal lead in the first half and continued to increase their advantage in the second half.

Eccentric hitting slowed down the Salem team's offensive attack and kept the local club numerous scoring opportunities. Paced by Bill McClaren, Zelienople riders were hitting in top form and outmaneuvering the Salem riders on both offense and defense.

McClaren led the Old Furnace scoring, counting six goals, J. B. (Pete) Votaw collected two of Salem's four goals, while Jim Pidgeon and Tony Sheen each counted one.

The Salem riders never threatened after the first chucker in which they held Zelienople even. Both teams scored twice in the opening period, but from then on it was all Zelienople.

Four Goal Sport Old Furnace staged a four-goal uprising in the second chucker and held Salem scoreless to move out in front, 6-2. The two clubs counted one goal apiece in the third, changing the count to 7-3 at half-time.

Salem was held to one goal in the second half, while Zelienople scored six times, chalking up two points in each of the last three periods. Salem's lone second half score came in the fifth period.

The Salem riders will wind-up their Penn-Ohio league season next Sunday when they face the Akron Bar K Cowboys on their home turf. Several non-league games are being planned for the local club after the end of the league campaign.
